

MAIN STORY Conversation with Dr. Vipin Gupta

December 29, 2021 Thebookreviews No Comments

1. How do you define the VIPIN project? Bold, Revolting or just informative?

The VIPIN project is educative, illuminating, and revolutionary. It educates the readers about the metaphysics of reality. It illuminates the cause, the sequence, and the consequence of reality. It revolutionizes our understanding of the cause and empowers us to manage the sequence cost-effectively for realizing the desired consequence. The cause of the reality is the potential each of us has for trading Mother Nature's natural value as the trading factor. The trading factor endows us the energy to manifest the reality. The consequential energy sequence becomes the causal realm shaping our divine plan for forming an asymmetry system by reproducing the natural value as our essence. Our essence is immanent within the reality of everything we manifest. Thus, we become entangled with the goals we pursue for manifesting diverse realities.

A need emerges for introspection into what we are introverting through the extroversion of our potential. We introvert the para-consciousness of the things we create in the diverse forms. Those things remain within our consciousness and attract us towards the reality of everything manifested by the others, motivating us to trade that reality for becoming the foundation of everything. As the others follow, the thermodynamic force transforms the foundation into the quantum photon. As we follow the others, the quantum photon transforms into the quantum light. As everyone reproduces the quantum light, they produce the light at the speed of light. The speed of light is the conscious system making us conscious of the light we were before becoming a photon and transforming into the diverse forms in the physical realm. The light illuminates the path for realizing our essence without reproducing the natural value. When we introspect, we enjoy an absolute realization of our essence by cultivating and developing our essential nature into its undivided form of the greeter essence that greets the reality as a primordial greeter. As a primordial greeter, we enjoy absolute freedom from the trading factor and develop the power to create energy, transcending the law of limitation of the theory of energy conservation and the scientific paradigm.

- What is your expectation from your readers after reading this book?

My expectation from the readers is to keep their mind open for grasping the reasoning given in the book. Once the readers grasp the reason, they may use the reason as the light guiding their conscious decisions in life. In our life, we use theories, ideas, notions, opinions, emotions, egos, conceptions, perceptions, experiences, and references as the guides of our para-conscious decisions. The decisions are conscious when we have certainty of fulfilling the purpose of life through them. The decisions are para-conscious when we lack a clarity about the purpose of life and therefore rely on the guides for guiding us to live our life. We make living life by experiencing its diverse colors and pairs of opposites the purpose of life. We believe we have lived a wholesome life if we have enjoyed everything and matured over time. However, maturity does not lead to freedom. It entangles us in teaching others our life lesson, wishing that we accelerate everyone's maturity. Everyone wishes to diffuse their consciousness system for guiding everyone's conscious system. Thus, life becomes a puzzle we need to disentangle for enjoying our conscious system without the weight of the infinite consciousness system. The infinite consciousness system is the para-conscious system whose weight pollutes our consciousness and limits our power to make conscious decisions with our conscious consciousness. Instead, we gravitate towards the spirituality guided by the spirit that motivates us to fill the darkness within our mind with the light of the universe. When we are attracted towards the light of the universe, we lose sight of the light of our inner self. We become our foe, always negating our intuition with false reasoning, fears, and hopes. We begin seeking God without us, instead of enjoying oneness with God within us.

- Please enlighten us about your inclination towards spirituality and science?

Spirituality and science have specific roles in our life. They are tools for us to enjoy life. I enjoy them as tools instead of letting them enjoy me. People let spirituality and science enjoy them. Everybody has become a producer, a consumer, or a trading of spirituality and science. One produces spirituality by sharing one's spiritual experiences. Everyone's spiritual experiences are different. When we trade someone's experiences, we develop a wish to enjoy the same experiences by becoming a copy of that someone. If we are devoted to a divine entity and experience the divinity of that divine entity, we wish to reproduce that experience personally and socially, and eventually make that an institutional experience the whole community shares for their salvation, i.e., shared becoming of a copy of the one they are experiencing. As the next step in the sequence, one produces science by investigating everyone's shared becoming and servicing our discovery for making everyone conscious of the alternatives to shared becoming. When we trade someone's ideas, we become bound by their ideal-effect and take them as our ideal. We begin conceiving the ideal as the holy spirit breeding itself as the original within our light. We begin behaving as if we are also original like our ideal, breeding their ideas as our ideas about the purpose of life. The breeding system becomes a fact of life, contaminating the breathing system. With the pollution of our mental space, we begin behaving like an immortal entity. Even after our death, we decide to stay with our devoted followers as their guiding spirit, generating an illusion of them making conscious decisions for their conscious well-being. Consequently, we circle back to produce spirituality as a parallel universe.

- Your books are thoroughly researched. How much time did it take to complete What is Trading Factor?

I took three months to complete What is Trading Factor over a three year period. I wrote the book in seven iterations. In the first iteration, it was just a section of the draft that evolved into twelve books. The final iteration took 1.5 months to complete.

- How do you wish your readers to talk about your book?

I wish the readers talk about the insights they get from the book and how those insights are helpful in their self-development. The purpose of the book is to help each person develop themselves, and thereby further the development of everyone.

- VIPIN is not your first project. How and why did you conceive this idea?

Project VIPIN is a consequence of a sequence of research projects seeking to discern the cultural origins of the variations in development at the individual, local, national, and international levels. Eventually, I inquired the origin of culture. The cultural originates from the transformation of our essential nature with I am a deity consciousness. Our I am a deity consciousness contaminates our essential nature and accultures everyone with our consciousness of reality. Why do people seek to become cultural icons who limit the imagination of the child about the realm of possibility by making themselves larger-than-life? How larger-than-life fills the hole to become our mental space and closes the mental space from enjoying the possibilities of life? How can one free one's mind from the present reality and exchange that with the conscious imagination of the impossible to make that possible? This is how and why I conceived the idea of making myself the project for further investigation of my possible development.

- What kind of change do you expect your book can bring to society?

I expect the book will free people from the notions based on ideals, opinions based on theories, and numbers based on dust-ball empiricism purified through mathematical manipulation to give an elite space to the physicists. The prominence given to the physicists in the modern culture has made the entire universe materialistic, forcing everyone to join in the race of becoming a millionaire, billionaire, trillionaire, and even more. One accumulates wealth only through unsustainable control over the resources that Mother Nature intended for every child. On the one hand, physicists claim that energy can never be created, it can only be transformed. On the other hand, they seem to endorse the claim of the social scientists and the economists that the trillionaires are actually creating the energy that makes them wealthy and are not taking that energy from anyone else. According to them, the energy belongs rightfully to the wealthy, it is a private property not public good. Clearly, the hypocrisy of the scientists is evident in the present paradigm. It is called heads I win, tails you lose. One claims that energy is constant, to acculture everyone into appropriation of energy, so that the claimant could be rewarded for illuminating the limitation and the actor could be rewarded with the sanctification of the appropriation as the private property right. And, if you decide not to believe the claimant, you lose out as it is your share of the energy that is now institutionally sanctioned as the believer's property right.

- Who is your inspiration for becoming an author?

Mother Nature is my inspiration for becoming an author. She has gifted me the potential to be anyone I wish. I am grateful that she gifted me the potential to be limitless and also made me realize the factors limiting her gifts. The limiting factors are not natural—they are supernormal mediation of the human beings both while living within the physical body as well as after that. Supernormal mediation leads to thermodynamic entropy. That's why we are experiencing ascending entropy over time in the mental, intellectual, and physical realms. As an author, I disentangle myself from the entropy and develop my consciousness in the ascending-order for living a fulfilling life without any limitations.